ATHLETIC WEAR MADE FROM MERINO WOOL AND SILK

Made in Germany with Environmental Certification

For over 30 years, Engel has been manufacturing underwear from natural fibers to the highest ecological standards - out of respect both for skin and for nature. These products have also been available for many years in the outstanding blend of merino wool and silk. A high-performance line of athletic wear designed for sports and outdoor activities made from soft, 100% non-scratch fabric is now being produced and sold under the name ENGEL SPORTS. This line of apparel utilizes a new material made from superfine merino fibers that are only 17.5 microns thick and combined with exquisite silk, allowing the wearer to experience the ultimate in comfort. The Merino wool comes from certified organic livestock in South America. The sheep are shorn according to strict animal welfare guidelines by specially trained shearers. The shearing is accompanied by direct supervision.

ENGEL SPORTS garments are manufactured in Germany in compliance with the strictest criteria for socially responsible labor practices and ecological production, and the entire manufacturing process is certified under the Global Organic Textile Standard (GOTS). In November 2015, ENGEL SPORTS products were granted the German Federal Eco-design Award.

Feel and experience nature

The combination of merino wool and silk results in maximum breathability, comfortably insulating the wearer against temperature extremes. The inclusion of 2% elastane in the athletic wear, shirts and tights reinforces the natural elasticity of the wool fibers and guarantees that they will retain their shape extremely well in movement.

ENGEL SPORTS products provide the highest level of functionality for nearly every type of athletic activity, both indoors and out. The superlative properties of the material and the fitting design allow the garments to adapt to the body, conforming to the wearer's every movement. The natural properties of the wool/silk blend prevent bacteria from settling, which greatly reduces the buildup of odor caused by sweat. These garments don't need to be washed very often - simply airing them outdoors will make them seem like new again. The wool fibers absorb UV radiation naturally, protecting against the damaging effects of sunlight on the skin.

Depending on the particular garment, the athletic wear made from fine merino wool and silk is available in three different weights: a lighter fabric weight of 150 g/m² and the somewhat heavier and warmer weights of 200 g/m² and 240 g/m².

The lightweight all-rounder

Superfine and extremely light - with a fabric weight of only 150g/m², these garments make an ideal base layer - the first layer that is worn directly against the skin. These stretchy, high-performance base layer pieces won't wear out, and conform to every movement without constricting. Lightweight and yet cozy and warming, this material made from superfine merino wool and silk is exceptionally effective in supporting your skin functions by regulating body temperature and managing moisture.

WASHING

Machine washable at 40 °C (approx. 100 °F) with wool detergent, thanks to a state-of-the-art fabric finishing process that adds no harmful and toxic chemicals

Quick-drying

Because garments made from a wool/silk blend will seem like new again after being aired outdoors, they require washing far less often

Wear under or over

With a fabric weight of 200g/m², these pieces can be worn directly against the skin or as a mid layer (second layer) over lighter-weight items, depending on how cold or warm you feel. This fabric is more robust and substantial than the 150g/m² version, offering more room for air pockets that provide thermal insulation. The fine, soft blend of merino wool and silk protects against overcooling, insulating against temperature extremes no matter the weather conditions.
